PROVINCIAL NEWS

Improvement in Provincial Dairying

At last year's session of the Legislature, the government passed an amendment to the Dairyman's Act, eliminating the country cream stations and furnishing in their place a system of government inspection and grading. The wisdom of this action is shown in a report of the summer's work recently submitted by C. Marker, provincial dairy inspector, to Hon. Geo. Hoadley, minister of agriculture.

As compared with 1921, there has been improvement both in the quantity of butter manufactured and also in the quality of the product, thus bearing out the argument advanced for the passing of last session's dairy legislation. Mr. Marker in his report says:

"There has been gratifying improvement in the average quality of our creamery butter during the five months under review over that of the corresponding period of 1921. In order to obtain a basis for comparison a summary has been made of the classification of the butter handled through the provincial grading stations at Edmonton and Calgary during the periods in question. The butter so graded represented approximately 60 per cent. of the total creamery butter produced and may with facility be taken as an index of the comparative quality of the whole production."

Butter graded 1921, 5,102,195 lbs., 1922, 5,496,131 lbs.
Special grade, 1921, 8.3 per cent.; 1922, 26.3 per cent.
First grade flavor score 40, 1921, 30 per cent., 1922, 34.8 per cent.
First grade flavor, score 39, 1921, 34.9 per cent., 1922, 18.8 per cent.
Second grade flavor, score 38, 1921, 19.5 per cent., 1922, 14 per cent.
Second grade flavor, score 37, 1921, 6.3 per cent., 1922, 4.4 per cent.
Off grade, 1921, 1 per cent., 1922, 1.5 per cent.

Anyone who is familiar with dairy market conditions will realize the significance of these figures and of the result that has already accrued from this very interesting demonstration in the field of "vertical" operation.

No Moratorium for Alberta

Hon. J. E. Brownlee, attorney general, has made it plain that the government has no intention of creating a moratorium in Alberta. There seemed to be some misunderstanding about this question, but the attorney general's recent statement should clear the matter up. The offices of Commissioner Freeman will be exercised.

Macleod Seed Fair

The directors of the Macleod Agricultural Society have arranged to hold a Seed Fair on Friday, December 1st in the Town Hall.

It is a good many years since a Seed Fair was held in Macleod, but on account of the crop conditions being so much improved this year in the district, the directors feel that the Seed Fair ought to be revived, and they are depending on the farmers to support and back up their efforts in this splendid work for the benefit of the district. The object of a Seed Fair is to create a healthy rivalry among the farmers, to grow the very best grain possible on their farms, and where a farmer has an exceptionally good grain it gives him the opportunity of disposing of that grain to better advantage and his less fortunate brother a chance of securing good clean seed right at home where he can see what he is buying, and so does not require to depend on taking any kind of seed through the ordinary channels of the grain business.

The seed branch of the Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, have notified the Secretary that judges will be sent from that department to do the judging at the Fair, and give addresses during the afternoon on the subject in a purely voluntary way, in endeavoring to adjust differences between debtors and creditors, which should be good business for the country, and beneficial to all interests.

Alberta Hospitals

The fourth annual report of the American College of Surgeons has been issued and contains reports on a survey made of all hospitals in the United States and Canada of fifty beds or more. The following hospitals were put on the approved list in ten: General Hospital, Edmonton; Alberta: Royal Alexandra, Edmonton; Misericordia Hospital, Edmonton; Galt Hospital, Lethbridge; General Hospital, Calgary; Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary; Public Hospital, Lacombe; Medicine Hat Hospital, Medicine Hat. These institutions proved that they are giving the best of scientific care to their patients and Alberta was congratulated on the splendid showing made in hospital work.

Amend Game Act

Hon. Geo. Hoadley, minister of agriculture, intends to introduce a bill at the next session of the Legislature to amend the Game Act, giving the minister power to grant permits to farmers who are suffering loss from prairie chickens, to shoot them for one or two days out of season as the case may demand. This does not mean an extension of the shooting season, and the privilege will not be extended to sportsmen.

Canadian Grain Crop

Some statisticians have figured out that it would require 257,250 freight cars and 7,350 locomotives to move Canada's grain crops this year, and that if placed in a continuous string these cars and engines would make a train 2060 miles long, or almost the distance from Montreal to Medicine Hat. Canada's wheat crop this year is large enough to supply 35,000,000 people with a loaf of bread per day for a whole year.

Many Homesteads Available

A recent homestead map issued by the Department of the Interior shows that there are over 8,000,000 acres of land available for homestead entry in the Edmonton district, north, northwest and south-west within a radius of from fifty to one hundred miles of Edmonton. There are also millions of acres available for homesteads in the Peace River and Grand of seed and seed selection. The directors are also arranging with the ladies to supply a dainty lunch during the afternoon which will be free to all farmers, their wives and all who attend the Fair.

It is hoped it will be a big success, but that can only be by every farmer taking part by exhibiting grains and whatever seeds he has on his farm.

ADVERTISERS PLEASE NOTE:

Changes of copy for local advertisements must be in The Times office not later than 4 p.m. on Tuesday of the week in which such are to appear—this is essential in the publishing of the paper on time and as all advertising copy is called for by a representative of this office it should not be a hardship for advertisers to co-operate with The Times in its effort to publish early on Thursday each week.

The Wheat Belt Extends North

News has come out of Dawson City in the Yukon, that wheat sown there this spring matured and ripened, was milled into whole-wheat flour, and sold to consumers in this northern Canadian city.

Good Crops at Fort Vermilion

Rev. T. F. McGregor, Presbyterian minister at Fort Vermilion, has come up the Peace River, and brings word of good crops this year at that far northern point. The crops are up to the average over the whole district. The wheat was No. 1 hard as usual. Hay was abundant and the season favorable to putting up large quantities of fodder. Tomatoes, cucumbers, pumpkins, and even musk-melons matured this year.

Want to Change Locations

The Minister of Agriculture announces that his department is investigating the applications of more than one hundred farmers who desire to be moved from their present farm to new homesteads in northern Alberta on account of their failure to make good in their present locations. The investigation covers the adaptability of the applicants for certain phases of farming activity, with the idea, if possible, of moving them to a location that will be suitable for the line of farming they desire to follow. It is being distinctly stated to all that their future prosperity, if moved to the north, will depend on mixed farming principally embracing (besides farming) dairying, hog raising, eggs and poultry, as a basis of their own living and a continuous supply of money. When applicants are approved they will be moved free, the provincial government, the federal government and the railways each bearing a share of the expense.

Hay and Potatoe Show

This show is being assisted this year by a grant from the government. Good prizes are offered in twenty-seven classes. The potatoe department is divided into seed and commercial varieties. POPE HAS AUTO

Pope Pius is to have an auto. The people of Milan, where the Pontiff was Archbishop before his election, have presented him with a machine of the latest Italian model. It is a mauve colored and bears on the doors the Papal coat of arms, surmounted by the triple crown and the Pontifical keys. The Pontiff, it is said, will use the car within the Vatican gardens which he now circles twice daily in his promenades, a distance of three and a quarter miles.

When the car was brought into the Vatican grounds Pope Pius went out to see it. "We will use it first to transport the statue of the Madonna of Loretto," the Pontiff said, meaning that the car would be utilized September 6th, to carry the copy of the famous statue, which he is to bless that day, from the Vatican to Loretto. The statue is a small, black image of the Virgin and Child, carved from Lebanon cedar.

This is the first time a Pope ever has owned an automobile. Some of the Cardinals in late years, however, have been possessors of gas propelled cars. Cardinal Vincenzo Vanutelli was the first of the Cardinals to have a car, it having been presented to him by American Catholics. Cardinal Merry del Val, when Papal Secretary of State, also had a machine in which he was wont in summer time to motor to the seashore fourteen miles from Rome to bathe. Vatican officials today remarked on the change from relatively recent times when ecclesiastics were forbidden even to ride bicycles.

THAT OLD MOTHER OF MINE.

Ireland, though you are over the sea—
Erin, my home of times in dreams,
Of mountain-walks and woodland dells,
Fond memories come again to me.
In fancy I can see the old cot,
Round the door the roses twine,
How dear to me is Erin,
That old Irish mother of mine.

We loved that land we left;
'Twas our lot to roam;
Yet always have been cheered
With strains of "Home, Sweet Home."
At times she speaks of other days,
Azure skies and golden sunshine,
With tears in her eyes she sighs,
That old Irish mother of mine.

In dreams she sees its shores again—
Killarney Lakes, where beauty dwells.
In memory oft-times she hears
Those sweet Shandon bells,
A father dear and little ones,
With tears in her eyes, she smiles,
That old Irish mother of mine.

Days of her life are not many—
That dear Irish mother of mine.
She dreams of the land of the Shamrock,

Her trust, her love so divine
Though Erin to-day is sore oppressed,
She prays for peace sublime,
I know there's a place in Heaven
For that old Irish mother of mine.

LETHBRIDGE WINS FIGHT FOR 35 CENT GAS

Lethbridge, October 28.—Lethbridge won in its suit case against the gas company according to the judgment of Mr. Justice Tweedie.

Gas is assured at the price of 35 cents per thousand until the expiry of the franchise in 1927.

This is stated in a judgment of 71 pages, just handed down, in its concluding paragraph as follows:

"There will be a declaration that the plaintiff is entitled to supply of gas for itself and its inhabitants for a period of fifteen years from the 30th day of July, 1912, at a price no greater than that set forth in the by-law.

The interim injunction granted by Mr. Justice Walsh on the 2nd day of May, 1922, will be made permanent. The plaintiff will have its costs of the action.

This ruling is understood to apply to Macleod, Granum, Claresholm, Nanton and Okotoks.

FASCISTI FORCES TRIUMPH IN ITALY

Naples, Oct. 25.—The challenge of the Italian Fascisti party that it would rule the country legally or illegally, that it would seize the government either through parliament or through insurrection, has been satisfied by the promise of the convocation of parliament, the reform of electoral laws and general elections, declared Deputy Benito Mussolini, leader of the Fascisti in his address yesterday in the first session of annual convention of the organization.

An army corps of Fascisti on war footing numbering 40,000, and civilian Fascisti delegates numbering 50,000 gathered here yesterday for the annual convention.

The government has reinforced the police force at Naples with strong detachments of royal guards.

London, Oct. 30.—The triumphant Fascisti forces were ready today to take over the government of Italy. Their leader, Dr. Benito Mussolini, was scheduled to see the king and answer the call of the sovereign for him to create a new ministry to replace the Facta government whose downfall was brought about last week by the growing tide of Fascist power and sympathy.

Rome, Oct. 30.—The new Italian cabinet of Benito Mussolini was announced this evening.

REAL WALLINGFORD HAD TO BE SOUGHT; DID NOT SEEK JOB

Wilfrid North in Effort to Aid Director is Told to Speak for Himself

The selection for the cast for "The Son of Wallingford," which will be shown at the Empress theatre on Wednesday and Thursday next, was a work that received the special attention of the authors, Lillian and Randolph Chester. It was their desire to get players who would fit the description in the book. Mr. Chester interviewed more than fifty applicants for the role of J. Rufus Wallingford, without finding one that fitted the part. Having written the stories, he knew just what he wanted, and he knew where that man could be located. Finally, he consulted Wilfrid North, production manager of Vitagraph's West Coast studios and an actor of note.

"The man I want for this part," said Mr. Chester, "the man who fits it admirably and who has the experience to give an excellent portrayal has not applied for it yet."

"Let's send for him," answered Mr. North. "We'll get him. Who is he?"

"Yourself," replied the author.

The production manager was taken by surprise, but agreed to accept the engagement. He was formerly a stage actor and for several years a director for Vitagraph. Aside from his ability on the screen he has qualified for the role by the fact that he, physically, was the Wallingford of the story. The majority of the applicants for the part were of aldermanic proportions, entirely unsuited to the role of Wallingford who was big, but not excessively corpulent.

Mr. North stands more than six feet in height and weighs more than 250 pounds, making the exact character of the illustrations that accompanied the Wallingford stories in magazines for years and particularly in Collier's Weekly where "The Son of Wallingford" was run in five installments. For years Mr. North was on the stage with Mrs. Fiske and is an actor of the old school, when actors had to act. He later became a producer of stage plays and directed some of the greatest stars before entering pictures. An authority on the drama, he has written much material which is used as text books in university dramatic classes.

Before taking up the stage, he was a practicing lawyer in Texas. Mr. North directed the famous Johnny Bunny comedies of Vitagraph in the early days of pictures and later was associated with the same company's greatest productions.

The other characters of the play were selected with equal care.

WITCH IS BEWITCHED

Queer Accident to Player During Filming of "Saturday Night"

"Ducking witches" has again become fashionable. At least they do it out in Los Angeles.

In Cecil B. de Mille's new Paramount picture, "Saturday Night," which will be displayed at the Empress theatre for two days beginning

"I Was a Fright!" "Nothing I Could Take Made Me Any Fatter."

"Up to the time I was seventeen years old, I believe that I was the most miserable and unhappy girl that ever lived. Honestly, I was a sight. I was the most ungainly looking creature you ever saw. I was thin and scrawny—straight up and down. My height was five feet nine inches and I weighed exactly ninety-one and three quarter pounds. No matter what kind of clothes I put on I looked like a fright. I was clumsy and awkward. I used to stand before the glass and study my features. I found I had a good nose, good eyes and a good mouth, but my cheeks were sunken and my face looked like a skull with a piece of parchment stretched over it. But nothing I could do or take made me any fatter. Men rarely even glanced at me. When they did, they merely gave me a casual, amused or pitying look, an expression which I am sure meant, 'why is a being like that allowed to live?' I used to lie awake at night for hours at a time wondering why there were so many beautiful girls in the world and I was so hideous. I met a friend of mine one day, Elsie W. and I hardly knew her. While she had never been as thin as I was, a year or more ago she ran me a close second, but when I met her she had taken on flesh and had developed into a fine handsome girl with one of the prettiest figures I had ever seen. I asked her what had caused the big change. She said, 'Carnol. She told me she had been taking it regularly for the last three months and that from the first week of taking it she had begun to put on flesh. I was so encouraged by what she said that I couldn't get to the drugist fast enough. I bought a bottle and since then I have been taking it regularly. It has made the greatest change in me you ever saw. I now weigh 165 pounds and all my friends tell me what a wonderful figure I have and I know that I am admired!'

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money.

SOLD BY R. D. McNAY

Monday next, there is an elaborate Halloween party at which a broomstick riding witch appears.

According to Jennie Macpherson's scenario, the witch was to enter via an aerial cable, sailing across a bathing pool and landing in the midst of the guests of the party.

All went well with the mechanics of this scene in two dress rehearsals but the signals became switched, or possibly bewitched, when the cameras actually began to turn. Instead of carrying the witch safely to shore, the mechanism of the aerial cable dropped her in the pool. Hampered by her flowing robes, the actress playing the witch floundered helplessly in the water until she made a bedraggled exit by the same route that carried her in. The mechanical contrivance at fault was promptly given the title of "ducking post" in memory of its predecessors of two hundred years ago.

SAME SURNAME—NO KIN

Theodore and Edith Roberts in Cast of "Saturday Night"

Two players bearing the same surname but who are not related appear in Cecil B. de Mille's latest Paramount picture "Saturday Night," which will be seen at the Empress theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

They are Edith Roberts and Theodore Roberts. Although both have been numbered among the screen's most capable players for several years this picture marks their first simultaneous appearance. Theodore Roberts should play the part of Edith Roberts' father in this picture. Unfortunately, that was not possible and so instead, the veteran character appears in the role of Leatrice Joy's uncle.

Jennie Macpherson, author of the story, developed a quartet of principal roles which are portrayed by the Misses Joy and Roberts, with Conrad Nagel and Jack Mower making up the masculine portion of the quadrangle. Other players of note in the cast beside Theodore Roberts are Edith Chapman, Sylvia Ashton, James Neill, Julia Faye and John Davidson.

OH! IT'S AN ACTIVE LIFE

Theodore Roberts Travels Far to Play
in "Saturday Night"

Theodore Roberts, veteran character actor, travelled across half of the state of California—the second largest state in the Union—to appear in Cecil B. de Mille's latest Paramount picture, "Saturday Night" which comes to the Empress theatre next Monday and Tuesday. Although the part was an important one, the producer foresaw that it could be filmed in relatively little time. So Roberts was cast in another role which carried him high in the Sierra Nevada mountains, five hundred miles from the Lasky studios. And just then Mr. de Mille needed Roberts. Frantic telegraphing and no less frantic stage and railroad travelling on the part of Theodore Roberts landed the latter at the Lasky studio the morning of the day he was to appear before the camera in "Saturday Night." Leatrice Joy, Conrad Nagel, Edith Roberts and Jack Mower head the cast.

AUTHOR DEPARTS FROM ANCIENT CUSTOMS

George Randolph Chester Produces
Something New in Films

Just how George Randolph Chester, the noted author and editor in chief of Vitagraph, came to be directing one of his own stories, "The Son of Wallingford," which will be shown at the Empress theatre on Wednesday and Thursday next, was told by the writer himself. Mr. Chester has long been a personal friend of Albert E. Smith, president of the company, and more than two years ago criticized pictures in general. His remarks were more or less casual.

"Could you do any better?" Mr. Smith asked.

"Yes!" answered the author emphatically.

"How long will it take you to learn?" inquired the producer.

"Two years," said Mr. Smith, "join my organization and we will see what two years will do for you."

The author took him at his word and for two years has been editing Vitagraph productions. So well did he accomplish his task and so conscientiously did he study every angle of the picture business that Mr. Smith came to him before "The Son of Wallingford" was made into scenario form and asked him to direct the production.

"I want to see how your theories will work," said Mr. Smith.

Mr. Chester accepted the challenge and went about the work of producing a picture in an entirely different way than had ever before been attempted. His aim was not only to produce an artistic production with stupendous sets, spectacular scenes and thousands of players, but to produce these at minimum cost without stopping at expense, but eliminating waste and loss of time. His endeavor was to reach 100 per cent efficiency in producing a film with the result that the finished production would be a masterpiece of film art and achievement. Mr. Chester's success was beyond his expectations and the resulting picture is one that will set new standards in the film industry.

I.O.O.F. Annual District Meeting

The annual district meeting of District No. 7, I.O.O.F., was held in Macleod, Nov. 1st, afternoon and evening sessions.

The Lodge was honored by the presence of four Past Grand Masters, O. E. Tisdale, Grand Sec'y; P. G. Tully, both of Calgary; W. B. Burnett of Lethbridge, and E. F. Brown, Macleod.

There was a large and enthusiastic attendance at both meetings. The Macleod brothers had made every arrangement for the comfort and pleasure of the visitors.

The delegates were: M. E. Melchun, D.D.G.M., G. L. Pollard and W. G. Andrews of Macleod; Carl Carlson, M. Cressman, Staveland; J. W. Morrow, W. Knight, Claresholm; S. Stewart, B. Allison, Granum.

J. W. Morrow, of Claresholm, was elected D.D.G.M. for 1923.

R. W. Russell, of Macleod, was elected District Secretary.

Grand Secretary Tisdale gave very stirring address on efficiency in the Lodge.

At the evening session, the Lodge was opened in regular form by the officers of Mountain View Lodge, No. 4.

There were almost one hundred Oddfellows at the meeting. The initiatory degree was conferred. The work was excellent throughout. After the closing of the Lodge the brother went to the banquet hall where table had been spread to seat one hundred.

The banquet was a success in every way, and everyone enjoyed the good things. W. T. Fleming was in charge of the banquet preparations and was assisted by members of the Rebekah Lodge, as well as by brothers of Mountain View Lodge. There were many visitors, twenty from Lethbridge, five from Cardston, and one from Pincher Creek, besides the visitors from the Lodges in District No. 7, Claresholm, Granum and Staveland.

The musical part of the program was furnished by Bros. Ridley, Whitworth and Russell, assisted by Mr. Fred Morris at the piano.

It was a great treat for the Macleod brothers to have held in their Lodge such a rousing, enthusiastic meeting. The annual meeting will be held in Granum next year.

LOCAL & PERSONAL

Mrs. A. T. Leather is back in Macleod after spending several weeks visiting friends in Edmonton.

Frank Vellacott, who has been in Blairmore for the last three weeks, returned to Macleod on Tuesday.

D. M. Leyden of Granum, was in town on Tuesday night, attending the Masquerade Ball in the G. W. V. A. Hall.

Red Cross campaign for funds and members—November 5th to 11th. Meet the canvasser with a smile and a contribution.

Mr. J. D. Matheson of Macleod was in Calgary on Monday of this week attending a sitting of the Supreme Court, in that City.

Mrs. J. R. McLean returned last week from a six weeks' vacation spent with Mrs. Russell Whipple, her daughter, at Victoria Peak, Alberta.

Miss B. Jackson, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. James Ringland for the past two months, leaves for her home in Toronto on Saturday.

Olive Young and Nora Ford spent two days in Pincher Creek last week, attending a farewell party given by Mr. and Mrs. A. Ford in honor of Miss Ford's niece, Miss H. Richards.

While working one day last week in Wm. Gray's field, the cook-car belonging to Ed. Arlt's threshing outfit, caught fire, giving the cook a few bad burns and scalds, and ruining the car and its contents.

A very delightful birthday party was given to a number of friends by Master Jim Underwood on Halloween night, the occasion being that of his fifth birthday. The little ones sat down to a sumptuous repast consisting of the usual Halloween delicacies, after which games were indulged in until nine o'clock when light refreshments were served and the happy kiddies said "Good-night." The following guests were present: Misses Norma Peterson, Ruth Ringland, Margaret Hamilton and Beryl Underwood and Masters Charles Middleton, Geo. Johnston, Dick Canning, Douglas Baker, Norman Baker and Wes Hamilton.

Quite a success, both in attendance and financially, was the Halloween Masquerade Dance held at Monarch on Tuesday last. Several carloads of enthusiasts attended from Nobleford, White Lake and Pearce, as well as a large number from Macleod. A feature of the dance was the excellence of the costumes, and the judges had a hard time awarding the prizes. A splendid supper was served at about twelve o'clock which was much enjoyed, as Monarch is noted for the "good eats" always provided. Smith's orchestra, of Macleod, was on hand with the latest music, and kept the dancers busy till the early hours.

Red Cross Notes

More than two hundred towns and villages have already been completely organized for the membership and finance campaign of the Red Cross to be held from November 5 to 11. Headquarters of the provincial branch announce that they will have organized between four and five hundred districts by the date for the opening of the drive.

There are in Alberta 115 local organizations of the Red Cross, and 88 active Red Cross committees. These branches will handle the campaign in the districts where they are situated. In other districts at least 200 other committees will be organized to take charge of the campaign and many, in fact, have already formed committees. This vast organization is being brought into being by the co-operation of the people in the local centres and the efficient work of a trained staff at the head office of the society in the province.

Requests for information and literature are constantly being received from all over the province. In the smaller centres which are not located on railways there is a particular demand for information with regard to the campaign organization. It is in these districts especially that the Red Cross has done a great and necessary work during the last few years.

Officials are pleased with the enthusiasm that is meeting their efforts. Reports are being received daily from towns and districts in all parts of the province in which it is stated that steps towards organization are being taken and a general air of optimism seems to prevail all over Alberta as to the success of the campaign.

GERMANY'S INDEMNITY DEFAULT

Hon. Reginald McKenna, a former British Chancellor, and now head of a great London banking firm, says that since the war Germany has only paid about $2,000,000,000 in reparations. Of this amount, $1,645,000,000 is represented by value of ships, coal property in ceded territories, and local payments to armies of occupation. The amount paid in cash has been only $375,000,000. This, for a nation of Germany's financial power, and covering a period of at least two years, indicates how deliberate has been evasion of payment.

The Allies are demanding $32,000,000,000 from Germany, and the amount recovered, so far, is about 5 per cent. of the total. The German mark has sunk until it is almost on a par with the Russian rouble. It is useless as a medium for further German payments. Billions of them would be equivalent to only a few thousand dollars. Apparently Germany has endeavored to make such payments as are compulsory out of the sale of marks, not by selling abroad good securities, materials, or other assets that have normal value in sterling or dollars. The reparations issue is approaching its crisis, in which the Allies will have to consider what can be done to get more out of Germany. The French in 1871 raised a billion dollars in a year, and paid off Germany. They produced about three times as much cash as the Germans have produced, in sterling or dollars or francs, since the war. The French budget two years ago was largely based on expectations of heavy German payments. The budget today is made as self-sufficient as possible. The French army might occupy the whole Ruhr basin, but even this would not bring in the cash that France so urgently needs for reconstruction in the devastated areas.

France owes to Britain and the United States some six and a half billion dollars. She cannot pay. Without German indemnities she will not be able to pay for decades. Britain may be able, in time, to repay the four billions owing by her to the United States, without debt repayment by France or indemnities from Germany. It is plain that German invasion of the indemnity obligation puts France into a more precarious position than Germany herself has, yet in the face of that condition, the Poincare government plays hand after hand against the government of the only strong friend France has. Certainly Germany is not taking any action that will tend to make France's lot easier.

NO DISUNITY IN THE EMPIRE

In France and Germany, as well as in other foreign countries, keen attention is paid to evidences of unity or disunity within the British Empire. Previous to the Great War the military potentialities of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa were held in some contempt by the militarized nations of Europe. The Australians and New Zealanders at Gallipoli, in Palestine and in France, opened Europe's eyes. They were among the best.

The growing power of the Dominions standing behind the Mother Country makes the Empire a formidable group of states. The recent message of the British premier, asking the Dominions if they wished to be represented in possible military activity at the Dardanelles, was an attempt to get evidence of Imperial solidarity on this great issue in order to strengthen the British government's hand in its effort to make a satisfactory peaceful settlement. New Zealand and Australia responded promptly, and in a satisfactory way. Premier Smuts, who alone could commit the South Africa government, was away in the bush in the interior. Canada, the principal Dominion, sent an evasive enquiry for more information. The King government simply dodged the issue. Now what was the effect of that in Continental capitals? The Paris press found intense satisfaction that New Zealand alone promptly agreed to send troops. La Liberté said:

"The time for crusades is over. We do not see one single country among the European Allies that will be ready to send troops into Asia Minor. The British Empire itself remains cold. The warlike manifesto from Downing Street has made it apparent that the British Empire is not united, at any rate not on the Eastern question."

Dispatches from Berlin on the day following receipt of the note in Canada revealed great joy at the apparent disunity within the Empire. "One reads in every newspaper," says one dispatch from London, "that Canada and South Africa are unwilling to raise troops for such a war." The unfortunate fact is, that France, Germany and all the other nations believe that Canada has no heart for support of Britain in another emergency in the Near East. When the Lloyd George government is resolved to carry through a settlement with the Turk that does not sacrifice every vestige of the Empire's victory, Canada is regarded as a slacker in promise of effective support. The question raised by the note from London was not a promise to send troops, but an affirmation that Canada stands behind the Motherland in this crisis—that affirmation to stand for the information of France, Germany and other nations that have a wholesale respect for the power of a united and co-operating British Empire.

HOW SOVIET TREATED AN ENGLISH JOURNALIST

Associations of British Journalists and the National Council of Women of Great Britain and Ireland are now trying to do what the British government has failed in, namely, to force from the Soviet government some reparation for the outrageous treatment accorded Mrs. Stan Harding, a well-known British journalist, who was imprisoned for five months in Moscow. She was charged with being a spy, but was never tried, and only obtained her freedom when the British government made a trade agreement with Russia, and insisted upon the release of British nationals held there for alleged political offences. Mrs. Harding's account of her sufferings is as damning an indictment of Soviet rule as any we have come across, and is evidence that the men who are ruling Russia today are not misguided enthusiasts but veritable monsters, to whom torture and murder are regarded as necessary and justifiable means to perpetuate their dictatorship. It is plain, too, that they recognize the fact that only by lying on a colossal scale will they be able to re-establish relations with outside world, and that a foreign journalist who will not enter into the conspiracy while visiting Russia goes in danger of his life.

Welcomed at First

Mrs. Harding, who was an experienced journalist and foreign correspondent, was accredited to The New York World in 1920 for the purpose of visiting Russia. She was not anti-Soviet, in fact her leanings were the other way, and this was the reason why the Russians gave her permission to enter the country after similar requests for two other New York World correspondents had been refused. She went well recommended by friends of the Soviet, and her earliest reception was most cordial. A man named Mogilevsky was attached to her as interpreter, but it turned out later that he was a member of the Cheka, the Russian Secret Service System. To her astonishment two days after reaching Moscow she was informed by Mogilevsky that she was a prisoner. She was immediately clapped into a filthy cell without any preliminary examination whatever. Later on she learned that she was suspected of being a British spy. She was accused of having done secret service work for the government in China at the time of the Boxer rebellion, although when this occurred she was a child in England. Her note books were examined and a line of poetry was held to utterly condemn her as being an expression of regret for the Czarist regime. The line was:

"Gone are the woods of Arady and over is their antique joy."

Invited to become a spy

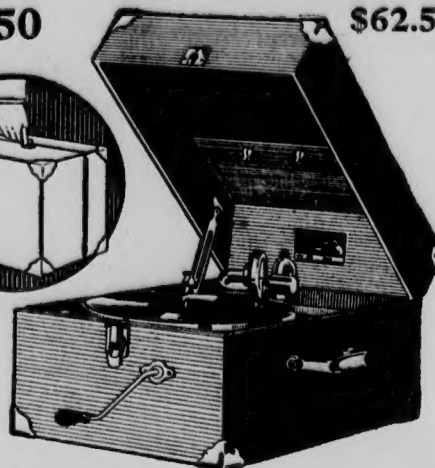

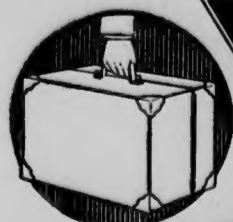

Three days after her arrest she was told that her case was closed and that she would leave her cell only to suffer execution. But it became plain that her case was not closed. Almost daily she was visited by an emissary of the Soviet who told her that if she wished to regain her freedom she could do so on condition that she remained in Russia and acted as a spy on the foreign correspondents, concession hunters and others who were constantly coming and going. She was also told that her position would be most congenial if she remained in Moscow and wrote special articles for the New York World, in which she would send stories prepared for her by the Soviet. She steadfastly refused these offers, and so was kept in solitary confinement in a vermin-infested cell. Her food consisted of an evil-smelling hot water, in which were herrings' eyes and fins. Mrs. Harding says the obvious attempt was against her reason for she was not allowed a book or a paper. She was not given sufficient covering against the cold, but all the time was under the eye of a sentry. Fearing that the solitary confinement would drive her insane she went on a hunger strike, and this had the result of her being removed to the large central prison where she was herded with some of the highest and lowest of Russian society, from the former Czarist official to the street walker and murderer. But any society was better than none, and twice Mrs. Harding resorted to the hunger strike to secure human companionship.

The "Garage des Morts"

Part of the prison was used for executions, and a lot of shooting was being done because this was the time when the Polish advance was feared. The place of execution was known as the "Garage des Morts" because of the trick of the officials to start a motor car running at the moment of execution in order that any last words of the victims might not be heard. There were between two and three thousand prisoners, and Mrs. Harding says that the place was like a huge hotel where guests were continually arriving and departing, the latter having their destination in the "Garage des Morts." Some of the prisoners have been there for many years wholly forgotten by their jailers. Many of them knew of no charge against them. They were imprisoned on suspicion of being hostile to the Soviet.

A Sensational Charge

When Mrs. Harding reached England she was wholly broken down, and it was not until some time after her return that she made the charge that her imprisonment was due to the treachery of Mrs. Marguerite Harrison, an American correspondent who was doing some special work for the Associated Press and several American papers. Mrs. Harrison is at present in China, and it has been impossible to secure a statement from her. Mrs. Harding makes it plain that for-foreign journalists who are not prepared to spread Soviet propaganda are not wanted in Russia, but that if they will publish in the Western press a few general falsehoods they are permitted to give to their heart's content at communism. She does not believe that the death by starvation of twenty million Russians would cause Lenin and Trotsky to relinquish their grip upon the country.

The preacher had been strolling about the links, and wishing to drive home a small moral lesson said mildly: "I notice that the players who get the lowest scores are not those who swear." "Why the hell should they?" demanded the gloomy golfer as he dug up some more turf.

District visitor: "What a well-behaved little boy yours is, Mrs. Blobs." Mrs. Blobs: "Yes, just like his father. My husband always gets a few weeks taken off his sentence for good conduct."—Exchange.

THE MAN WHO WINS

The man who wins is an average man, Not built on any peculiar plan, Not blessed with any peculiar luck, Just steady and earnest and full of pluck.

When asked a question he does not "guess,"

He knows, and answers "No" or "Yes," When set a task that the rest can't do, He buckles down till he's put it thru.

So he works and waits, till one fine day There's a better job with bigger pay; And the men who shirked whenever they could Are bossed by the man whose work made good.

The actual performance of a battery in your car and not a paper "guarantee" is what counts.

Since the days of the first storage battery (which was an Exide), the Exide has been earning its reputation as the long-life battery. Ask some Exide owner—they are all about you, for more cars leave the manufacturers' hands equipped with Exides than with any other battery.

The dependable, long-lasting power of the Exide means more to you even than comfort—it means dollars and cents economy.

When you get a new car you have a right to a battery of Exide quality—in other words, an Exide Battery. In replacing an old battery in your present car, insist on an Exide and if you have any trouble in getting one, write us or our nearest district distributor.

If you don't feel warranted in buying a new Exide Battery at this time, ask our nearest Service Station—before you consider getting a substitute make of battery—whether your present battery cannot be rebuilt with genuine Exide parts.

Go to an Official Exide Service Station for Winter Storage—it will pay you.

Sheikh El-Digwi has applied to the Ministry of the Interior for permission to bring out a literary scientific magazine under the name of Sot Al Hak, ((The Voice of Truth)).

THE GREAT LEVELLER (Daily News, London)

In the game of golf the meek and diffident man, if he is a scratch performer, comes into his own. It is the great leveller, bringing princes and prime ministers down to the ranks of common men, and infinitely below the dignity of a club professional or a local amateur champion. The missed drive at St. Andrews establishes a common bond of sympathy between the Prince and that vast majority of enthusiastic golfers who usually miss their drives—whether anybody is looking or not.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION (Auckland Weekly News, N.Z.)

Most of the boys who would have taken advantage of farm schools, if they existed, are already students at secondary schools, but through lack of opportunity to expand their natural inclinations they are being driven into pursuits for which they are less suited or will return to the land with an equipment of knowledge of little value in their practical vocations. To this extent there is waste in our educational expenditure, and the extension of agricultural training would be truly economy, augmented by the benefits that would be derived by the boys themselves.

THE SECRET OF LIFE (The Herald, London, Eng.)

The longer names the scientists invent to dignify the stomach-ache, the longer will our faces become until appetite faints and the dining-room and kitchen are entered as though they were chambers of horrors. The sight of potted meat strikes terror to the heart, and if Carlyle lived today he would have to indite a chapter to the hero as Tin-Opener.

Let us nerve ourselves to eat and drink by thinking upon all the plagues in history. Sydney Smith was convinced that digestion is the great secret of life; let us add to digestion resignation.

NO OTHER WAY

(The Englishman, Calcutta)
The Moharrum riot at Tellinapara and Multan are not themselves very serious affairs. Many worse have taken place in the past. They have, however, today a significance which did not attach to them before, for the reason that it was chiefly on the so-called Hindu-Muslim pact that both the Extremists who desire immediate Swaraj and the Moderates who want an Indianization of the services have been building. We ourselves believe that if by any means Hindu-Muslim unity could be obtained one of the greatest objections to Indian Home Rule would be removed, for obviously an understanding between the leaders and followers of the two great religions in India would be a safeguard both against domestic trouble and foreign enemies. But that unity to be at all permanent must be based on mutual tolerance.

THE REMITTANCE MAN (Hong-Kong Weekly Press)

Investigations carried out by the Chinese bankers would now appear to show that the wealth of overseas Chinese has increased very much in recent years, and that their remittances to Amoy during the year 1922 amounted to no less than $44,000,000. Assuming that this estimate is approximately correct, it would appear as if Amoy really gains on the total annual trade, including the profits on human labour, and that the balance in favour of the port is, at least, more plentiful at Amoy than at neighbouring ports, and the cost of living has markedly increased.

Abe Mitchell played 36 holes, of golf the other day at Nashville in 136, and still there are a lot of us who think we know the game.

Fancy Dress Ball Was Great Success

The masquerade and fancy dress ball held at the Veteran's Hall on Wednesday evening of this week under the auspices of the G.W.V.A. proved a great success in every way. The costumes were both varied and beautiful and the judges had a very hard and thankless task in selecting the prize winners. Their final decision was as follows: First, Ladies, Miss Vera Benson, "Poudre Lady"; First Gents, A. Ross McPherson, "Comic"; First, Ladies, Mrs. Vernon Pearson, "Stove Pipe"; Comic Gents, N. C. Hart, "Skeleton." Miss Benson is to be congratulated on the splendid make-up representing her difficult role which she portrayed to perfection. There was a slight mistake on the part of the judges in awarding Mr. McPherson first prize in the character of a "Sheik" as the costume portrayed that of a Hindu Prince, but as the judges thought it a good representation of an Arab, why it must have been. Mrs. Pearson and Mr. Hart both were very good in their comical characters and deserved the prizes. Amongst those costumes worthy of special mention are: "Poudre Girl, Miss Wall; "Joan of Arc, Mrs. Inkster; "Gypsy," Miss Edith Ferguson; "Russian Boy," Mrs. Ferguson; "Tramp," Mrs. W. Shields; Miss Mary Young as "Mary Jane," "Slip on Something," Two young ladies from Lethbridge; also there was a young lady who had one of the best characters in the hall representing a rooster, but unfortunately through some misunderstanding and on account of the heaviness of the costume she did not take part in the procession, hence she did not compete for the prizes, one of which she would have undoubtedly won. In the gentlemen's costumes "Russian Hussar," Mr. T. Whitefoot; "Chariot Driver," Mr. Pinkerton; "Mexican," Mr. Fred Godwin; "Highwayman," Jerry Whitlock; "Young Girl," Mr. N. Dillingham, were splendid. The ball was undoubtedly one of the best that has been held in Macleod for several years not only from a spectacular point of view but also financially, and the G.W.V.A. committee are to be congratulated on putting over such a successful ful affair. There is one thing we think should be mentioned, that is in judging costumes the judges should allow quite a per centage in home made character costumes and those that are obtained from costumers in different large centres, for it is easy to realize the higher price paid for a fancy dress, why the better the costume, whereas an original home-made costume is worthy of more recommendation. The usual G.W.V.A. orchestra, assisted by a saxophone artist from Pincher Creek, put on a splendid program of dance music worthy of the occasion.

"PRIDE OF ANCESTRY AND HOPE OF POSTERITY"

To build a house is the supreme gratification in life next to the courtship, marriage and homemaking that are the incentives of the best human activity.

A Home of Your Own means a permanent record of the best that men and women can be and do. It is a record more enduring than Cheops, more inspiring than the cuneiform writings of Nineveh and Babylon—the living record of a race integral with an appropriate place.

President Eliot was right—"There can be no true aristocracy among people who exist in hotels or move every first of May."

To be an aristocrat of the proper kind Buy or Build a House of Your Own—Found a family and then find a permanent seat for it, with a house of your own—one that your children will be proud to claim, that your son will be proud to inherit, occupy, maintain and transmit to his successors of the strain.

And by the way: There is small likelihood that you will have a better time than this to build your house. Prices are about as low as they will be until debt reduction and lessened taxation correct the world-wide inflation which is responsible for the soaring of the commodity index.

Macleod Branch Red Cross Campaign For Funds And Members

A meeting of the Macleod branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on Saturday, Oct. 28th. There was a larger attendance than usual and keen interest shown in the coming campaign for funds and members.

Since the Macleod branch was organized about a year ago, 140 requests for clothing were received; this means that clothing was given to 500 individuals, 190 pairs of boots, mostly new, were given out, 2300 suits of underwear; also dozens of sweaters, caps and other garments which represents many dollars worth of goods.

Several emergency calls have come to us, and there were always some ladies ready to put aside their own work and make garments. We have never had to refuse any requests made to us, and it is safe to say that many children in Macleod and surrounding country would have been unable to attend school had we not been able to supply suitable clothing and shoes.

Our shelves are empty and our balance of cash on hand is very small, but we hope to be able to carry on, with YOUR aid in our campaign which begins Nov. 5th and ends Nov. 11th.

Meet the canvassers with a smile and have your donations ready.

ON LEAVING HOME

God speed thee, my laddie,
So dear to my heart!
Safe guide thee, and guard thee—
True wisdom impart.
Though dangers may threaten,
Temptations assail,
With God for your refuge
No ill can prevail.

God keep thee, my laddie,
Wherever you go,
That in every danger
True courage you'll show;
When evils assail thee,
Shrink not from the fight,
Go forward with courage
And ever do right.

God needs thee, my laddie,
To do and to dare,
And in the world's battles
To take your due share;
Wherever the duty,
Whatever the task,
Be true to your highest—
No more will He ask.

NATIONAL POPPY CAMPAIGN

Thousands of bright red poppies will be worn by residents of Alberta in all districts of the province on Armistice Day, November 11th. Already 200,000 of the large and small poppies have been distributed to the various organizations handling the campaign in the province and will be sold during the week on which Armistice Day falls. It is believed that nearly every person in the province will be wearing a poppy on that day.

Following the custom inaugurated last year, the Great War Veterans' Association in Canada has undertaken the distribution of the "flower of remembrance," similar to those worn in every corner of the Dominion last year. Organizations of all descriptions are co-operating to an even greater extent than last year in this noble task. Besides G.W.V.A. branches in Alberta, other organizations are rendering assistance. R. Gallacher, provincial secretary, said that there are still a few districts where no organization has so far signified its willingness to handle the campaign. Offers of assistance in these instances will be gratefully received.

The officials of the provincial command are being kept busy every day and many times late at night handling the poppy orders. When a shipment arrives from the east, it is necessary to unpack each box and re-address the flowers to the various districts which have sent in orders. This necessitates counting all the flowers and entails a great amount of work. For this reason the secretary hopes that all orders for poppies will be forwarded to the provincial command offices as soon as possible.

191st Battalion Colors Deposited In Methodist Church

On Sunday last at the morning service, the Methodist Church was the scene of a very impressive ceremony, namely that of handing over the colors of the 191st Battalion into the keeping of the Church. All the members of the Battalion who could possibly attend were there, also other war veterans, all in uniform, made up the procession. Lieut.-Col. Bryan, of the 191st Battalion, handed over the colors to the Rev. Armstrong, and in accepting them the reverend gentleman replied with a beautiful and inspiring address befitting the occasion. He referred with great feeling to those who had enlisted with the 191st and had made the supreme sacrifice, and also pointed out that the colors of the Battalion would be held sacred and in safe keeping as an honored memory to those who had so bravely upheld their traditions in the great fight for the peace and liberty of the world, those who had successfully issued from the conflict and those who were only with them in spirit. The church was packed to its utmost capacity and a large choir under the leadership of Conductor J. T. Doney sang appropriate songs and solos. It was a service that will live long in the memory of those who attended and is one of the first of such services to be held in Macleod. Lieut.-Col. Bryan, who was commander of the 191st, is a well-known Macleod man, having lived here for a number of years. After leaving the N.W.M.P. he held the position of Clerk of the District Court in Macleod for several years prior to his taking over the command of the 191st, after which he was made Commissioner of the Alberta Provincial Police, which position he still holds.

EARLY HISTORY OF NOTED STAGE FOLK

Alexander Woolcott, the well-known New York critic in the "North American Review" tells some interesting tales of the antecedents of noted stars. The following are extracts:

The theatre has an aristocracy older and more deeply rooted than that which any other activity in America can boast. The banker or the woolen merchant or the pedagogue who can say that his father and grandfather were bankers or woolen merchants or pedagogues before him feels so great a strength and continuity in the fabric of that life that he fairly glows with pride and with a sense of well being and security. But compared with the foremost actors of our stage, these tradesmen and philosophers are the merest parvenus.

Of this impression that the talents of the theatre are husbanded through the years, handed down from father to son, from mother to daughter, the annals of the American stage furnish repeated reminders and reinforcements. Such reminders come at odd times and in odd ways. Go into the Players' Club, standing there on the south side of Gramercy Park, smoky, unpretentious and (for New York) quite thick with memories. There they will point out to you, with a certain unfathomable satisfaction, that the club, in all its years, has had but three presidents. The names of the three are written on the walls. Edwin Booth, Joseph Jefferson, John Drew. But what they do not point out, probably because they think of it as a matter of course, is that each of these men, in his fleeting eminence was no nouveau riche of the theatre, but one born in its purple, one trained to its speech from the cradle, one bred of showfolks.

The name of Booth has been in our playbills for more than a century. It is still there. The Jeffersons were of even older lineage, and the time was when a performance of "The Rivals" was managed in this country with every role played by one or another of the Jefferson clan. And Drew, of course, stands midway, the grandson of a popular English actor, the son of a superb commedienne, the uncle of the three Barrymores.

Consider for a moment the most beautiful art which the theatre of our time has known, the incomparable art of Eleanor Duse. Her biographical note in "Who's Who in the Theatre" starts off with the single significant line. "Born of strolling players." Are we to find the explanation of her art in that fact? Or is there no need to go back of the mere fact that she went on the stage as a baby, so young that by the time she was seven she was experienced enough to take over the post of prompter, and by the time she was sixteen she had had enough training to play the foremost roles, enough, at least to play Juliet in a production at Verona. Sixteen and playing Juliet at Verona! The next Vassar girl who writes down in April to Mr. Belasco that every one is so good as to call her pretty and that they did all admit she was perfectly splendid as Twicken in "The Admirable Crichton" and that she is only twenty-one, and please would he take her under his instruction and make a star of her some day—such a one might well receive back from him just a little engraved card with this legend on it: "When she was sixteen Duse played Juliet at Verona!"

There is a story in some old showman's memoirs of a visit paid back stage in the late 'sixties, when Tom Davey and Lizzie Maddern managed the stock company out in Columbus. The visitor was all for a little idle gossip and sat down for his comfort on the nearest costume-hamper which had been pushed against the dressing room wall; whereat Davey roared with alarm and dragged him off exclaiming: "Here, don't sit there, or you'll be smothering America's future tragedienne before she has had a chance!" And he lifted the cover far enough to show that that basket was serving as a temporary cradle for a red-headed baby named Marie Augusta Davey, who was destined in time, to get out of the basket and, after a necessary and proper interval, to become Mrs. Fiske.

A PEN PORTRAIT OF KEMAL PASHA

In a letter to The London Times a few weeks ago Major General Townsend, British commander in Mesopotamia until the capture of his army by the Turks at Kut-el-marra, in the World War, gave this intimate picture of the Turkish Leader.

Piercing blue eyes, fair hair, a dim, intuitive, close cropped moustache—these are the salient features of Kemal Pasha, the force behind the Turkish push, that impressed me when I met him face to face at Konia only a month ago.

He is a man of middle height and he wore at the time of our meeting plain clothes—the knickerbocker breeches were well cut and rather in the English style—sporting stockings and on his head the universal "kalpak" of astrakhan, in a larger size than usual. The distinctive and useful feature of the "kalpak" is that it may be worn with either uniform or plain clothes. In appearance it closely resembles the fur caps of the Russians and the Persians.

Kemal, so far as I have been able to judge, is adored by the army and the populace, and it is in vain that the propaganda agents strive to represent that there are divisions in the Kemal ranks. In Constantinople actually 90 per cent. are for Kemal, and the Turks in Angora support him to a man. His orders are obeyed implicitly, his rule is an iron one because the velvet glove, and under him the government of National Turkey works smoothly and well. His will is law.

Kemal Pasha speaks little unless it is on a subject which vitally interests him; then he is eloquent. For example, one night when dining with me we discussed for a long time Napoleon's campaign of Austerlitz in 1805. This campaign provides one of the very few examples where Napoleon attacked the enemy's center; his usual method was to hold his adversary in front with a minimum part of his force, while he delivered his principal effort against one of the enemy's flanks.

When I went into dinner I certainly had no idea that I was going to have a discussion on Napoleon's strategy and higher tactics. We both agreed that Napoleon's doctrine is as valuable today as it was one hundred years ago, and I discovered Kemal is an enthusiastic admirer of Napoleon's campaign in Italy in 1799. I mention this in order to show that Kemal is a close student of military history—as every soldier who aspires to military warfare must be.

Laborious and indefatigable to the point of excess, Kemal is always at work, and possesses a wonderful grasp of European politics and affairs. This is all the more remarkable as his education was a purely military one, received at the Ecole de Guerre in Constantinople. He was in the Tripoli campaign and later served in several theatres of the war; his best service was in the defence of Gallipoli, and it was for this service that Liman von Sanders had him promoted to the command of an army. He was afterward on the tottering front of Palestine, where the Turks in the final stages were hopelessly outnumbered.

Kemal was inspector general of the Turkish army in Asia Minor after the armistice in 1918, and his patriotism came into prominence after the occupation of Constantinople by the Allies, when the Nationalists ran to arms.

Kemal is a patriot; he is out for liberty and independence—Turkey for the Turks—and he desires peace but an honorable peace. His terms (the interview took place before the evacuation of Asia Minor by the Greeks. He says, "How can I trust assurances that the Greeks will evacuate after four months, as was said in the Paris conference last March, when, in the middle of the London conference last year, during an armistice, the Greeks suddenly launched their offensive?"

"Will you try to persuade me that the British government did not know of that offensive being prepared?" he remarked to me. "If you can convince me of that then can you persuade me that the British government could not have stopped that offensive by raising a finger?"

CANADA'S PRIDE

Canada has many institutions of which she is justly proud but there is one of which at least a million of Canadians are particularly fond. It is the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal which has kept Canada the fore in the newspaper world. That great family and farm paper goes on year after year improving in every department until it has reached a point of proficiency that places it far in the van. The publishers promise even greater value for 1923. It is already the greatest value on this Continent and no home can well afford to be without it.

MOONLIGHT FOLLIES.

She had too many clothes—she had too many servants—she had too many horses—she had too much money—she had too many suitors—she was too good looking. And she wasn't satisfied. Things came too easily to Nan Rutledge, the spoiled eighteen-year-old daughter of Major Rutledge. An indulgent multi-millionaire father had given her too much of the worldly goods.

She hated men, the weak-kneed, lady-like males who won croquet championships and staggered on tea. She wanted a brute. A man who would grab her around the throat, drag her away into his mountain fastness, and choke her into love.

She got what she wanted and too much of that, when she decided to try her charms on Anthony Rutledge, an inveterate woman-hater.

All her life had been made up of too much of everything, but she found out she couldn't get too much of genuine love.

Marie Prevost in an adorable little kittenish "baby vamp" in "Moonlight Follies," which shows at the Empress Theatre on Friday and Saturday.

Her flirtatious flapper of the idle rich characterization is flawless. The Universal star and former Sennett bathing beauty is a natural born coquette.

"Moonlight Follies" is a comedy drama with a moral. It vividly shows what happens when an irresistible coquette meets an immovable male.

DRY GOODS, BOOTS, SHOES
GROCERIES & CLOTHING

The Fruit and Vegetable Season holds out. It brings back recollections when it was a surprise sensation to see an apple, peach, pear or grapes, and bananas were only read about, not seen. Fruit would come in by the coach from Medicine Hat only two or three boxes at a time. Those would be retailed at 75c to $1.00 per lb. A cucumber would be $1.00, tomatoes $1.00 or $1.25 per pound, apples in the winter 25c each. Now, come and look in our window and see the same kind of fruit less than ten cents per pound.

DRY GOODS

Was almost in the same position. No sending to Eaton's in those days. An occasional traveller would show up with a limited display of Dry Goods which would take from 3 months to six to get here. We used local hand-made millinery then. The cow boys would pay $25.00 to $35.00 for a fancy riding boot. Silk hosiery and gloves were always in demand, especially in cold weather, as a rider of the plains had to have silk next to his skin. On either hands or feet nothing so common as cotton. Silk handkerchiefs were bought wholesale both for use and to send home to absent friends. Come now, and look into our store and see the variety of every day things that now creates no surprise, but in those buffalo days would be thought a sight that to travel hundreds of miles to see would tempt one and all.

Word was received a few days ago of the death of John Henry Grady of Vancouver, B.C., which occurred on October 13, after a long illness. J. H. Grady was one of the boys who enlisted in 1866 for the Fenian raid in Ontario; later he enlisted for the Red River expedition in company with the late Lt.-Col. Steele, when they became fast friends. After they served their term they enlisted in the North West Mounted Police in which they served for several years together. Mr. Grady then joined the first town police in the town of Winnipeg, later the city of Winnipeg. After several years' service he moved to Vancouver, and was one of the first police of that town. He was afterwards jailer, the special in charge of the detective force. During the Great War he offered his services, and was placed in charge of the Coolies, transporting them from Vancouver to Halifax. Since then he has lived a retired life looking after his property and especially his garden of which he was fond. He was a brother of A. F. Grady, of

DEATH OF MRS. G. R. JOHNSTON

The death occurred on Saturday, October 28th, of Doris Johnston, wife of Mr. George R. Johnston, of Macleod. The deceased's death was not unexpected as she had been ailing for several weeks and had been receiving special treatment at the local hospital and was brought home a few days before her death. The late Mrs. Johnston was born in Ontario and was 33 years of age, and is survived by her husband Mr. G. R. Johnston, who has been manager of the Bank of Montreal here for several years, and one son, George, aged 8 years. She has lived in Macleod for the past three years, and during that time had made many friends to whom her death came as a great shock.

Mrs. Johnston had been spending the summer at Waterton Lakes and it is thought that she contracted a cold while camping, which finally resulted in her death. The sympathy of the whole community goes out to Mr. Johnston and his son in their great bereavement.

The funeral took place on Monday last with a service at the house, which was conducted by the Rev. Merriek, of Christ Church, thence to the cemetery for interment. There was a beautiful display of floral tributes from the many friends and acquaintances of the deceased.

CARD SHARPERS IN LINERS

Passengers in Atlantic liners should beware of professional gamblers and others of the same class who live by their wits at the expense of indiscreet travellers. They are reported to be more active this year than at any period since the war.

A ship's officer said to a London Daily Mail reporter: "Almost every liner has her victims each year, and great sums of money are being lost by trusting travellers, either at cards or, worse still, in the shape of hush money."

"The steamship companies are powerless to do more than issue printed warnings about the presence on board of professional gamblers. After all it must be assumed that grown-up passengers are able to take care of themselves in the choice of their friends aboard and at the card tables."

"It is known to us, and cannot be too widely known to the travelling public, that clever gangs of crooks—men and women—are regularly at work. They are well dressed and well mannered, and appear to have plenty of money."

"Some of the gambler's coups appear to be so well organized that it is suspected there is a master organizer pulling the strings—someone with knowledge, resource, new ideas and bold methods of carrying them out."

"A greater danger than the male 'shark' is the women decoy. The gang marks its prey down early during the trip, possibly on the landing stage where he is observed bidding farewell to his wife and family and friends. His social and financial position are soon ascertained. The more he has to lose by indiscretion and its consequent scandal the harder he is pursued."

"The pretty decoy, helped by the glamour and freedom of life at sea and the vanity of all mankind soon provokes and encourages the inevitable infatuation."

A gang of international rogues operating between New York, Southampton, London and Paris are giving the police of those places a great deal of trouble.

While crossing the Atlantic they take particular care not to arouse any kind of suspicion on the part of their fellow-passengers by indulging in card tricks or sharp practices. They assume the role of independent men going to Europe or to America for a brief holiday, and gain the confidence of their travelling companions.

All these men desire to know is where are aboard the liner and where they are going. On reaching Southampton or Cherbourg the men disembark with the particular passengers they are shadowing and go with them to Paris or London as the case might be.

On arriving at the capital the passengers are then handed over to the "residential operators" who promptly set to work to rob them on lines suggested by the travelling range, who after five or six days' acquaintance with their victims know their peculiarities and habits.

When the White Star liner Homeric arrived at Southampton from New York one of her passengers, Dr. W. L. Cave, of Philadelphia, reported that a considerable sum of money, a number of cheques, and other articles had vanished from his cabin in the course of the voyage.

Dr. Cave occupied a first-class cabin, which it is believed, may have been entered by thieves during his absence at dinner one evening.

The famous artist had painted a portrait of himself and his wife. His little son, brought in for a private view, said: "I think it's pretty. But who is the strange lady?" "Hyalcinth," said the artist reproachfully, "Don't you recognize your own mother?" "Oh, but then why did you paint her with that strange man?"
